

Bukky Adebayo is a product manager and technology policymaker. She currently serves as a Congressional Innovation Fellow in the U.S. Senate, advising legislators on technology policy, with a focus on digital consumer protection. Previously, she was a PM at several early stage startups: Bedrock Analytics, General Assembly, and Hopper. As technical product manager, she focuses on building ethical, user-centered data products. She holds a B.A from Olin College of Engineering.